Proprietary Rock gets its name from the prolific glacial river cobbles found throughout our LIVE and Salmon-Safe certified Double D Vineyard, located alongside the Columbia River in Orondo, Washington. Rocky Pond's irrigation pond holds 1.1 million gallons of water and is lined with these cobbles. The flagship vineyard is named after the original "DD" (David Dufenhorst) and has a north-facing slope with 55 acres of Bordeaux and Rhône varieties planted between 700 and 940 feet. This is one of the hottest sites in Washington, with similar heat units to Red Mountain.

TERROIR

The bedrock is migmatitic tonalite gneiss formed during the Missoula Floods. The glacial outwash and redeposited river cobbles are mostly granitic, but there is basalt present as well. Wind-blown sand and silt were carried back to the area topsoil over the last 14,000 years from previous flooding and glacial erosion down the Columbia River channel. DD soil type is defined as pogue cobbly fine sandy loam.

VINTAGE

The 2019 growing season was excellent. A long winter led to a slight but advantageous delay in bud break, decreasing the spring frost risk by shortening the window of the growing season. The season caught up by June and kept tracking above the long-term average for heat in our area. It was a classic eastern Washington harvest for timing, with the Cabernet Sauvignon picked in the last days of October and into early November. We achieved an average of 26 brix at harvest through extended hang time.

VINIFICATION

After hand-harvesting and hand-sorting, we began whole berry fermentation using stainless steel, 5-ton fermenters with twice-daily pump overs until dry. After segregating the free run juice, the pomace was gently pressed. This wine was barrel aged for 21 months in 25% new French oak.

WINEMAKER NOTES

Proprietary Rock is limited production, 100% Cabernet Sauvignon from our Double D Vineyard located alongside the Columbia River. This wine is medium/deep ruby in color, with aromas of cassis and black fruit, violets, and green bell pepper flavors. On the palate, notes of dark cherry, hot stone, and cola. Soft, but present tannins make this wine approachable now but with ability to cellar for ten more years.
